SHERMAN AND SILVER.

Mr. John Sherman in the excitement of the moment and in the presence of the desolation which he and his friends have wrought upon the country, has become a bimetalist. He would like to have the ratio fixed at 1 and 31. That is awfully kind of Mr. Sherman; that would so help silver and prices generally. More through his efforts than those of any other man the fooling with silver has cost the United States more than the war of the rebellion cost in money. It has broken more hearts and caused more suffering than would a war and pestilence combined. There is just this consistency about Mr. Sherman's remarks. Since the silver question became a potent one, and the infamy of demonetization has been made apparent to the American people, Mr. Sherman, to shield himself, has always favored an international restoration of silver on the basis of putting the coin value of gold against the commercial value of silver, and making that the ratio between the two metals. That does not help his case. He has seen property decline 50 per cent, but because in his great bank in New York all interest it collected was gold and because through that bank the securities of the Government have generally been negotiated, he has kept his merciless talons on the throats of the people of the United States, until the life is about choked out of business. All his words are worth today are what they are worth as an evidence that he sees a tidal wave is rising, and he is going, if possible, to stay out of the wet, and at the last moment, if he can, still conclude an arrangement which will once more defeat the right.

THE PRESENT UNREST.

The Globe-Democrat has this item:

Several would be Joans of Arc have appeared in the Coxeyite "armies," but where is the Charles VII to come from? The Coxeyites; Hoggans, Fyres and Kelly's are not exactly the sort of raw material that heroes are made out of.

That is all right, although in this world the man generally rises when the emergency calls for him. Probably there is nothing in Coxey, Hoggan, Frye or Kelly which gives any indication of great leadership, but they are merely an advance party. If the men in charge of the affairs of this Government are bright, they will see to it that a diversion is made and that something is done to stop these marching hosts, before some genius appears who would be able to combine, organize, and if necessary, in battle, handle a host. And the only way to stop the marching of these people is to stop the unrest which impels them to march, and the only measures which we can see which will have that effect will be to get through with the tariff legislation at once and to make an adjustment of silver which will be in accord with humanity, common sense and common justice.

Costly.

The annual salary of our chief magistrate is $50,000. He is furnished free of charge, with an elegant residence called the White house.

The President is a very costly fowl. First comes the expense of electing him; but as the funds for this purpose are furnished by the whiskey ring, the sugar trust, the railroad syndicates and an occasional speculator who buys him an office and pays for it in advance (as Van Alden did,) we need not attempt to go into that part of the subject.

Having declared the result of the election, the next thing is to swear in the President. Formerly the cost of doing so was next to nothing. For instance, Thomas Jefferson rode on horseback to the capitol, hitched his old mare to the fence, walked in and took the oath without its costing anybody a cent. And the beauty of it was that he kept the oath after he took it. Not so Grover.—Ex.

S. B. Kyle of South Dakota is being hoaxed for the Populist nomination for the Presidency.

The indictment of R. H. (Dick) McDonald, Jr., by a San Francisco Grand Jury for his connection with the People's Home Savings Bank, of that city, Saturday, is a step in the right direction and goes to prove that men in high places must not trifle with other folks' rights. Dick's money (if) may blind the eyes of justice to such an extent that he will not be called upon to serve a term in the California prison, which he so richly deserves, but he will have to let go of a big pile if he saves his bacon from being fried in the State's fry-pan.—Gazette.

Not Allowed in the Future.

The Postoffice Department announces that no more dropping of letters into the mail cars will be allowed. Hereafter mail will not be taken on the railroad mail cars unless it first passes through the post-office. The order was made because so many business men near railway stations mailed their letters on the train and it made a large amount of extra work for the mail clerks, time being used in stamping letters that was needed in sorting out mail between stations.

The School Board has purchased of W. J. Westerfield what is known as the Powning block on Second street for school purposes. The consideration was $5,000. It is fortunate that the school fund will permit the building of a new school house, as it would give employment to mechanics and others who are in need of work.—Journal.
